

GOLDEN NICHES REPORT

ADA lawsuits aren't hitting every business equally.

Certain niches are specifically targeted.

They tend to be local service-based businesses, often with outdated websites, zero legal protection, and no clue what ADA even is.

That's where you come in.

This report gives you the most lawsuit-prone industries right now:

The ones where a quick warning and referral could be worth $2,000 to $5,000 a pop.

THE HEAVY HIT LIST

These are the local niches getting hammered the hardest by ADA compliance lawsuits:

- Dental Clinics
- Chiropractors
- Physical Therapists
- Real Estate Agencies
- Law Firms (yes, even them)
- Restaurants & Cafes
- Day Spas & Salons
- Home Services (HVAC, Plumbing, Electricians)
- Auto Repair Shops
- Insurance Agents

Why them?

Most rely on appointments and online booking.

Their websites often have forms, maps, calendars, or PDFs which are ADA red flags.

They don't think they're targets, so they don't prepare.

SLEEPER NICHE WITH POTENTIAL

These aren't getting crushed yet, but they're primed for it and they typically respond fast to legal risk language:

- Financial Advisors
- Fitness Studios
- Private Schools & Tutors
- Local Non-Profits
- Pet Groomers
- Legal Aid Centers

These folks care about reputation and compliance. They'll listen.

NICHE FILTER: PICKING YOUR TARGET

Here's how to pick a niche that's going to make you money fast:

1. Website Volume:

Search your area using the Business Finder Tool. If you can't find at least 100 websites in a niche, skip it.

2. Service Value:

Higher-ticket services = higher urgency to fix legal risks. A $70K lawsuit hits harder when you're billing $200 an hour.

3. Web Presence:

Outdated sites = low ADA awareness = more red flags = better opportunities.
Start local. Own one niche. Then scale out with the AI.
